Local, historical roots go hand in hand with creativity and innovation at Padova!

In the beginning of April the InduCult2.0 partners met up in Italy. Together with their stakeholders they were introduced to the industrial spirit of Padova during several study tours. The tour guides of the Glass School at Murano and the Steel Factory of Padova very passionately described the rich industrial past of the region as well as how the present labour force is taken along in the industrial transition. At the Polytechnic School (in the shoe district) focus is clearly on the link between traditional and future

The InduCult2.0 network is expanding. Many stakeholders are becoming aware of the benefits and added value of Industrial Culture for their region!

We were all pleasantly surprised by the way the region of Padova is planning to use its Industrial Culture as a catalyst for future regional development - as demonstrated during the tours. The partnership shared the regional views and ideas on this topic during interactive workshops. It became clear that there are numerous inspiring best practices in the other participating regions as well. Concepts are now starting to evolve into actual action plans. Support for this process was provided by the stakeholders gathered by each partner in a focus group meeting. Regional argumentation brochures will be available in summer 2017.

Next meeting is scheduled for October 2017. It will be hosted by the Opolskie Centre for Economy Development (Poland).
