

Did You Know?

What is the digital value chain?

The digital value chain refers to the integration and optimisation of business activities and processes through digital technologies to improve value creation, delivery and capture. In the construction industry, it can significantly enhance sustainability by streamlining processes, improving efficiency and promoting circular economy principles. Key innovations in this area include digital product passports, digital marketplaces for secondary raw materials and platforms such as Gaia-X.

